

Adrián Monasterios

Software Engineer

Adrián studied Business Economics in the Torcuato Di Tella University in Buenos Aires. When he graduated, he was hired by Ernst & Young in the same city as a Tax Analyst. After two years he came back to his native country, Bolivia, and worked at Sinchi Wayra (Mining company, subsidiary of Glencore) for almost five years as a Management Control Specialist. In 2018 his career path changed when he decided to study web development. He completed the Full Stack Web Development course at Wyncode Academy in Miami and was hired at FinConecta in 2019 as a Software Engineer.

Besides web development and economics, Adrián has a background in Finance, Marketing and Design. He speaks Spanish, English and German.
